RECEPTION TENDERED HIGH SCHOOL FACULTY BY P. T. A. MEMBERS

On Friday night, October 14, another pleasant affair, the P. T. A. reception to the high school faculty, passed into the history of Jefferson Union high school.

About eighty people gathered to listen to an excellent program given in the auditorium. The high school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Potter, fulfilled expectations in their numbers, so excellently played.

Miss Dannenbaum, teacher of dramatics, delighted the audience with her clever delineation of "Betty at the Baseball Game."

Mrs. Clarice Olson and Mr. McGregor further endeared themselves to the community by their rendition of songs that never grow old. They were ably supported by their accompanist, Mr. Broom.

The little star of the evening was Dolores Kilm, whose skill at a violinist surprised and pleased all who heard her. She had an excellent accompanist in Miss Jeanette Taggart.

After the program, all enjoyed the substantial repast served downstairs, as well as the speeches made by some of our popular after dinner speakers.

Mr. Truman Bentley, acting as toastmaster, said that making speeches was like making apple pie. One needed a little crust and lots of applesauce.

Community interests were well represented by Mayor H. H. Smith, Prof. W. J. Savage, Rev. Elliott L. Fisher, and Prof. James Ferguson. To the regret of all, Mrs. L. G. Owen, representing the P. T. A. interests, had to leave early, and so was not present at this pleasant stage of the affair.

During the evening a mammoth cake was brought in, the bearer announcing that it was from our good friend "Bill," of the Relish. Everyone present was served with a piece of this delicious cake. Such a friend is a friend indeed.

The gathering was significant for its real community spirit, and the committee in charge are very grateful to all who helped to make it a success.

GOOD ATTENDANCE AT CHURCH BAZAAR

The third annual bazaar of St. Maximus church opened Thursday evening. A large crowd was in attendance. The children of the Sunday school on the opening night, under the direction of the Holy Family Sisters, staged a pageant representing harvest scenes, which was very pleasing.

An arch of beautiful and vari-colored lights spans the street at Wellington and Mission streets, opposite the Daly City Auditorium, in which the affair is being held.

The bazaar will run for four nights, closing Monday evening, October 24.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS AT HOUSE WARMING

Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Harmond and sons, of 150 Winchester street, gave a house warming in their new home last Saturday evening.

The home was artistically decorated for the event. The evening was spent in dancing to the radio, after which the guests enjoyed tempting refreshments served by the hostess.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Dan O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burnett, Mr. and Mrs. Al Schaeffer, Miss Beth McGrath, Miss Tess Liberati, Messrs. Frank Simons, Jack Connors and Jack Stingley.

DEATH OF GEORGE AITCHISON

Funral services were held on Tuesday for George Aitchison, of 143 Victoria street, who passed away last Sunday. He was 80 years of age. The funeral services were largely attended by members of Court Robin Hood, Foresters of America, and the Stationary Firemen's Union. Interment was in Cypress Lawn Memorial Park. George Aitchison was the beloved husband of Mary Aitchison and loving father of Mrs. J. C. Thompson, Robert W. and Harold Aitchison and the late George Aitchison. He was well known and highly regarded in Daly City and vicinity.

THREE PLAYS TO BE GIVEN AT JEFFERSON HIGH SCHOOL

The Jefferson Union high school dramatics class will present three one act plays on November 4, in the high school auditorium. The admission to be charged is 25 cents, and the curtain will rise at 8:30 p. m. These school plays in the past have proved most enjoyable and all who attend on November 4 are assured a most interesting evening.

SHOWER TENDERED PROSPECTIVE BRIDE

On Friday evening, October 14, a surprise kitchen and miscellaneous shower was given to Miss Louise Gregoire, of 40 Peoria street, who is to become the bride of Mr. Ray Grandona.

The hostesses were Mrs. B. Allen, Mrs. L. Gregoire and Mrs. A. Arata. The shower was given at the home of Mrs. B. Allen, 7 Otsego street, cousin of the bride.

The dining room was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Hanging from the ceiling was a large umbrella entirely covered with pink and white dahlias, with pink and white streamers coming from each point to the different place cards.

In the center of the table was a large kwepie doll dressed as a bride, and lilies of the valley, pink and white roses were artistically scattered about the table. Tiny baskets and the place cards were ornamented with tiny white wedding bells.

The bride-elect was the recipient of many useful and beautiful gifts.

Those who enjoyed the evening were: Misses Freda Christen, Mary Nolan, Rose Bertetta, Marie Musante, Mildred Grandona, Helen Powers, Blanche Romigieure, Alice Winant, Caroline Spani, Frances Spani, Louise Winant, Jeanet Jones, Alma Passalasqua, Ferdinand De Mulder, Pauline Gregoire; Mesdames H. Parker, R. Cullen, Larsen, B. Milano, F. Greco, P. Stamatis, A. Cerquettini, A. Arata, W. Wallace, E. Greene, L. Gregoire, L. Winant, J. Jacque, De Mulder, C. Winant, A. Allen, B. Allen, J. Church, J. Gregoire, B. Gregoire, E. Quinn; Messrs. Ray Grandona, Toney Milano, John Winart, Louie Winart, Ray Allen, Attilio Arata, Frank Greco, Bob Allen, Louis Gregoire.

Miss Louise Gregoire, of 40 Peoria street, and Mr. Ray Grandona, of South San Francisco, will be married at St. Maximus church on Saturday evening, November 5, at 7 o'clock.

P. T. A. ENTERTAINS FAITHFUL WORKER

A surprise party was given last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. McIsaac, 48 Miriam street, by the Woodrow Wilson and Vista Grande Parent-Teachers' Association, in honor of Mrs. Secor, who celebrated her seventy-fifth birthday.

Mrs. Secor has been for many years a good worker, both in school and church work, and is dearly loved by all who know her. The ladies presented her with a beautiful fern. Her favorite songs were sung and everything done to make the afternoon a pleasant one, after which refreshments were served.

Those who were present to wish Mrs. Secor a happy birthday were Mesdames Junker, Sherwood, Gaspine, Brown, Hawn, Pezzala, Hutchings, Falk, Stevens, Denk, Johnson, Rickman, Hutchison and Miss Frances Rickman.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS ATTEND RECEPTION

A reception was held by the Royal Neighbors on last Friday evening at Druids' Temple, San Francisco, in honor of Mrs. C. Hammell, of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Lu Case, of Berkeley. Among the guests were the following from Daly City: Mrs. Clarice Scott, Mrs. Mary White, Mrs. Maud Appleton, Mrs. Welch and Mrs. S. A. Landini. There were thirty new members who became Royal Neighbors. Mission Camp won the state banner for receiving the greatest number of members in a given time.

MANUFACTURING JEWELER TO LOCATE IN DALY CITY

Daly City's business section is to be soon added to by the presence of a first class manufacturing jewelry store. This place is to be operated by Fred Oswalt, an expert in his line. Mr Oswalt hitherto served in the Marine Corps, Aviation Section, and was seriously wounded by the propeller of his biplane. He will be located at 6396½ Mission street, the premises at present occupied by the Community Realty Company, who will shortly move to their new quarters at 6448 Mission street.

SURPRISE PARTY ON BIRTHDAY

A surprise party was given recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andresen, of 518 Bellevue avenue, in honor of the birthday of Mr. Andresen. The evening was spent in dancing and games, and vocal and musical selections were also enjoyed. A splendid repast was served at midnight. Those present included Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dana and children, Fannie Viana, Mary Cisalla, S. Viana, V. Prince and Frank Cisalla.

DALY CITY RESIDENTS PAINFULLY INJURED IN STREET CAR CRASH

While boarding a street car at Templeton avenue and Mission street, last Saturday night, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Fletcher, of 216 Templeton avenue, were painfully injured.

Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher had just boarded the rear platform of the street car when another car, coming from the rear, smashed into the rear end of the car they were on, the impact throwing Mrs. Fletcher off the car, she landing in the street on her back, rendering her unconscious. Mr. Fletcher was also thrown to the ground and landed on his right side.

Mrs. Fletcher was carried to a nearby store, the family physician was phoned for, and upon his arrival he ordered her removed to her home.

The exact extent of Mrs. Fletcher's injuries have not yet been determined. X-ray pictures have been taken, and they are awaiting the physician's report. Some of the flying glass penetrated her clothing and lodged in her body, and had to be extracted by the physician.

Mr. Fletcher received a bruised and sprained shoulder, also a laceration of an artery on his right hand.

Both are suffering severely from nervous shock, but fully realize the close call they had.

COMMUNITY REALTY TO HAVE NEW HOME

The Community Realty Company, who have been located at 6398 Mission street for the past year and a half, has leased the new building at 6448 Mission street, at present under construction, and will move to its new home on or about December 10. The new building will have three spacious apartments, two upstairs, and one down, each containing three rooms and bath, with all the latest modern improvements in the way of wall beds, built-ins, etc., and Mrs. Olson's office will occupy the remainder of the downstairs portion. We are indeed glad to see this type of business structure in Daly City, once more demonstrating that both property owners and progressive business occupants find it "a good place to live."

MINSTREL SHOW PLEASES AUDIENCE

The minstrel show given by the Daly City M. E. church at the Jefferson high school auditorium on Wednesday evening was a huge success, and has encouraged the participants towards further and more ambitious efforts.

The neg o folk songs were rendered with great feeling, and the interpolated numbers went with a swing and were much enjoyed by the audience.

The committee in chage wishes to extend hearty thanks to the trustees and principal of the Jefferson high school for their generous co-operation, as well as to Mr. Smith for his donation of the printing, show cards, etc., and feel that with the support they have been given up to the present, this winter will see many social activities taking shape which will serve to demonstrate that Daly City knows how, as well as San Francisco.

CELEBRATES FIFTH BIRTHDAY

Master Claude Lievsay, Jr., was guest of honor at a party given by his mother, Mrs. Lievsay of 451 Templeton avenue, in honor of his fifth birthday, on Wednesday afternoon, October 19. The dining room was prettily decorated with black and orange streamers and a pumpkin face on the center of the table delighted the little guests. Those present to wish Claude a happy birthday were Francis Welsh, Constance and Dorothea Hall, Ellen Petersen, Lucille Paulson, Robert Cullen, Bobby Paulson, Mickie Gregoire, George Young, Robert Christen, Ernest Brennen, Dorothy Peterson.

BUILDING PERMITS

City Clerk B. C. Ross reports the issuance of the following building permits during the week:

M. M. Home Builders, 256 Acton street, five rooms; 260 Acton street, five rooms; 264 Acton street, five rooms.

A. Gigli, 76 Vista Grande avenue, one room addition.

Tafaco Warmecke, 1028 Brunswick street, five rooms.

P. Duerner, 364 Woodrow street, five rooms; 301 Evergreen avenue, five rooms.

Lindsay Construction Company, 222 Oliver street, five rooms; 2 Risel avenue, five rooms; 8 Risel avenue, five rooms.

A STRANGER'S TRIP THROUGH DALY CITY FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

The following is a clipping from an issue of the Daly City Record of about fifteen years ago, which has been preserved by Mrs. E. Meeth, of 368 Weslake avenue, who very graciously furnished us with a copy. It will undoubtedly bring back fond memories to some of the old-timers of Daly City. It was written by Robert L. Behre, and was headed "A Stranger's Trip Through Daly City."

"Daly City, end of the five cent car line," the conductor called aloud;
Mos' ev'ry one got hustlin', I piled off with the crowd.
I didn't know a single soul, I didn't know a street;
The candy store looked good to me, myself I thought I'd treat.
To the lady 'hind the counter, I spoke like this and sed:
"Ain't this the town they used to say was awful, awful dead?"
"You're right, old man," a fellow said who jes' stepped in the door.
"That was when it was Vista Grande—but nixie, not no more."
"Beg pardon," I jes' said to him, "What be your bloomin' name?"
"Who, me? Oh, just plain Mullins, but I'm trustee just the same."
I left to take in all the sights, I had no city guide;
I hadn't walked more than a block, when a large board sign I spied.
"Record Corner," it did read; well, I broke one getting there,
But they was so busy printin' news they told me "Take a chair."
The office girl directed me to White, the city clerk;
He's 'bout the busiest man in town, his middle name is "Work."
He made me feel like one at home, and told me "Who is Who."
Mos' ev'ry one came in the place, and shook hands with me, too.
I must have had a seedy look, for here's the reason why—
A feller they called Hopper kept on me his eagle eye.
I was gettin' kind of anxious to see all that could be seen,
And was just about to leave the place when up speaks Trustee Green:
"Well, now, seein' yer a stranger, perhaps you'd like to have a friend;
But my fingers, Bo, are always crossed should you bone me for a lend.
I'll take you down to see the spring, and show to you the lake.
The pumpin' station, tank and all, and Smack's, too, if you'll wait.
We'll walk around the court house; the Judge you'd love to meet;
But if you own an auto, jes steer clear of Lowen's beat.
Whoa there! Hold them horses, Sub, and don't let them run amuck."
Then jumpin' from his buggy, James T. left it all to "Duck."
"Who be these two?" I said to Green. "Oh, the supervisor, hey?
Well, who's the chap leading his team to the pound while he's away"
"What you lookin' at, my friend, that ship out there at sea?"
"Naw, this fellow comin' up. He walks with dignity."
"O, he's the whole works, spring and key; he's sure a real live wire;
I'll tell you he's no amateur; that's Honorable Mayor Freyer."
"Looks like trouble over yonder; there's some one talkin' loud."
"Oh, that's Trustee Oberhaus boosting Daly to the crowd.
And when we get the fountain, it's ten to one they'll say:
It's Obie's boosting got it, but just let them dream away."
"It's gettin' time to think of home, so I'll have to leave you, pard;
I surely had a pleasant trip, just let me have your card."
Din. Qullinan heard this remark and slipped one to him quick;
I'm sure it was his business card, a real live agent's trick.
Well, here's my car; I hate to go."
"Well, you're like 5,00 more
Who came out here and settled down 'fore there was a single store.
In Frisco now-a-days they'll say, when a family moves away:
'I'll bet in Daly City you can find them any day.'"

LOCAL NATIVE SONS WILL INITIATE CLASS WEDNESDAY

El Carmelo Parlor No. 256, Native Sons of the Golden West, will hold another initiation on Wednesday evening, October 26. This will be the third initiation within three months. Refreshments will be served as usual, and a good time is promised all who attend. The local Native Sons are growing fast, making initiations regularly, and gaining prominence in the community.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS IN SEVENTH CONVENTION

The Supreme Grand Council of the Order of Job's Daughters held their seventh annual session, October 6, 7 and 8, in the Clift Hotel, San Francisco, Supreme Guardian Mrs. Evelena Cochran presiding. Mr. Edward Rainey, secretary to Mayor Rolph, delivered a brief welcoming address, response to which was made by Guy Hursh, of Topeka, Kansas.

The day sessions were purely business, the delegates being occupied with legislative routine. Under the auspices of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce an auto trip covering the city, as well as a trip through Chinatown, was enjoyed by over fifty of the out of town visitors.

The exemplification of the ritual given by an example team from the three Bethels in San Francisco was wonderful, and I am sure the Supreme Guardians were all of the opinion that:

You may travel thru our country,
Climb the mountain peaks on high,
View the splendor of the sunrise
With its gorgeous colored sky.

See the beauty of all gardens
And drink deep their fragrance rare;
Yet, this fades to insignificance,
When "Job's Daughters" we compare.

They, "the fairest in the land,"
And we glory in the view,
For 'tis God's most precious picture,
Our "Job's Daughters" sweet and true.

On Saturday evening the Grand Guardian Council of California gave a banquet to the supreme officers and their friends. Mrs. Ida B. Smith, executive chairman of the convention, acted as hostess to the supreme officers, and Grand Guardian Miss Enola Thrash, and Associate Grand Guardian M. Jenses acted as hosts to the visiting Guardians. It was a most beautiful event, this being followed by the installation of officers, a ball and reception given in the Florentine room of the Clift Hotel, ending the seventh annual convention, to meet next year at Indianapolis, Indiana.

M. JENSEN,
Associate Grand Guardian.

SONG SERVICE AT METHODIST CHURCH

A great song service is planned for Sunday evening at the Daly City Methodist Episcopal church. Mrs. Clarice Olson, Mrs. Bennett and Mr. McGregor will be the special soloists. If you miss this program you will be the loser. Mr. Broom has taken over the choir and is developing some real fine talent. The music at this church is about the finest in Daly City.

Sunday morning the pastor's subject will be, "Should a Man Pray."

The Ladies Aid meets every Thursday afternoon at the church. Plans are under way for a bazaar in the near future. Come and do your bit.

The Friendly Indians meet every Tuesday afternoon at 3:30. All boys from 9 to 12 are eligible. Next Monday evening the boys will have a bean feed and friendly hour.

Friday evening at 6:30 the Ladies Aid will serve a real home cooked meal. After the Fellowship dinner, to which all the people of the community are invited, Dr. F. H. Longbrake will give an address on "Roosevelt the American." This program will be in celebration of the great American, Theodore Roosevelt's birthday. Everybody is invited. Tickets will be 50 cents and 25 cents for the children. Come, and bring your family.

The Epworth League invites you to be present Sunday evening at 7 o'clock to enjoy with them their hour of worship. It is a real live organization, and you will be profited by coming. They are discussing the book "Pioneers of the Kingdom."

ELLIOTT FISHER, Pastor.

FIREMEN OF COUNTY MEET AT SAN CARLOS

The San Mateo County Associated Firemen held their monthly meeting at San Carlos on Tuesday evening. After the routine business was disposed of, the proposition of giving a theatre party was taken up and tentative plans were laid to give this party at the Peninsula Theatre, Burlingame, some time in November.

There was a good attendance of firemen from all parts of the county. The next meeting will be held in San Bruno on November 15.

ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

A delightful luncheon was given in honor of Mrs. L. H. Tracy, wife of the rector of St. John the Evangelist church of San Francisco, at the home of Mrs. Ward, 314 College avenue, St. Mary's Park. The hostesses were Mrs. Ward Faulkner, of 239 Crocker avenue, Mrs. Hill and Mrs. Ward. The table was tastefully decorated in orchid and pale yellow. The guests included Mesdames L. H. Tracy, E. H. Hills, W. Manuel, H. Plath, W. Clark, W. Thompson, J. Hartford, G. Keil, D. Williams, F. J. Nicholas, H. M. MacMurray.

LIONS MAKE PLANS FOR THEATRE PARTY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

At the dinner meeting of the Daly City Lions Club last Monday, Judge Ellis C. Johnson was a guest, making a short address in appreciation of the work being done by the local civic service organization.

Committees having in charge the preparations for the Lions' theatre party at the State Theatre on next Wednesday, October 26, reported unusual interest in the coming show, and expect crowded houses at both performances.

An excellent vaudeville program has been prepared for this occasion, which in addition to the feature picture, "Resurrection," will give those attending one of the best bargains of the season.

Lion members, their friends and families, are eagerly looking forward to this theatre party, and hope that every resident of Daly City, Colma and vicinity will be present, as all the receipts, above the rental for the theatre, which has been taken over for Wednesday, October 26, by the Lions, will be devoted to the extension of the purposes of the Lions Club—community service.

RED CROSS WORKERS MEET AT BURLINGAME

Red Cross workers in northern California will convene at Burlingame today for the annual regional conference of chapters to discuss the future program of the organization.

The outstanding feature of the conference will be the appearance of J. Arthur Jefferss, newly appointed manager of the Pacific area of the American Red Cross, who has but recently come west to take up his duties at the San Francisco headquarters.

Miss Matilda Harris, director of Red Cross nursing service for the Pacific area, will also be one of the conference speakers. Miss Harris succeeds Miss Dorothy Ledyard as nursing director and will be meeting the California workers for the first time. She will speak on "Building for Healthier Homes."

A topic of great interest not only to Red Cross workers but to parents and educators will be the one presented by Miss Eva Hance, director of Junior Red Cross.

Douglas Moore, Pacific branch staff assistant, will speak on "Red Cross Membership Campaigns."

The conference delegates, in conjunction with a large number of business and professional men, club women and other prominent citizens, will meet at luncheon at the Studio Inn, Burlingame. Mayor Harry Totten will give an address of welcome, following which Mr. Jeffers will review the accomplishments of the Red Cross in the field of disaster relief. The luncheon meeting will then adjourn to the Peninsula Theatre to witness a showing of the motion picture film taken on the scene of the Mississippi floods.

SPECIAL SERVICES AT GRACE CHURCH

Long ago a man said: "I would rather be right than to be president." And today we say that we would rather help some soul to a higher and holier life than to have the applause of the world.

We are praying and working for a deeper consecration among the members and friends of the community, that we may not only teach but live the real Christian life.

We are asking this for all who attend the church services. Enter to worship, and depart to serve. The florists have been saying: "Say it with flowers." Say it with service.

A special service will be held next Sabbath evening at 8 o'clock. Theme, "What Christianity Has Done for Women," and a very cordial invitation is hereby given to all the ladies of the tract. We will have special music for the occasion.

On Monday evening, October 30, the Christian Endeavor Society will hold a social, with program, at the church dining room. It will be a get-acquainted meeting with a general good time and some eats. All are welcome.

Phone us if we can aid you in any way.

ROBINSON CRUSOE had no telephone. There was no one on his island to talk to but Friday who was never beyond the reach of Crusoe's voice.

But there is no reason for any one in the United States to live like Robinson Crusoe. Anyone's telephone reaches anywhere and everywhere in the land. It will put people in touch with the nearest village or most distant city. It will run errands through rain and snow just as cheerfully as on sunshiny days. It helps people keep in touch with their neighborhoods and it makes one neighborhood of the whole country.

Moreover, it is the constant aim of the Bell System which serves the country to make its service better and to fit it more closely to the particular needs and desires of its telephone users.

SEVENTH BIRTHDAY

Little Miss Jane Frances Reiman was the guest of honor at a birthday party given in honor of her seventh birthday, on Saturday afternoon, at the home of her mother, Mrs. W. H. Reiman, of 81 Alexander street. The dining room and table were prettily decorated in black and yellow, and little Hallowe'en favors pleased the little guests. Jane Francis was the recipient of many pretty gifts. Those who enjoyed the party were Helen Ashton, Ruth Feiber, Jean Ray, Anneta Ryan, Elizabeth Abbott, Margie Eldridge.

FOOD SALE A SUCCESS

I wish to thank those who donated, bought and otherwise assisted in any way to make the food sale on Saturday, October 75, at the Crocker Tract fire house such a wonderful success. In two hours everything was sold. The affair was sponsored by the Crocer - Pershing Parent - Teachers' Association and their many friends. I would like to thank Myrtle Augustien, of Crocker school, who, with Mrs. Harry McKee, president of the Association, collected and delivered all donations and orders in such an efficient manner.

MRS. S. A. LANDINI, Chairman.

A two in one birthday dinner was celebrated at the home of Mrs. S. A. Landini, on Winchester street, on Sunday, October 16, for William Fuhr, Sr., and Billy Fuhr, Jr., whose birthdays were the following day. Both father and son were delighted with their gifts. Those at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Fuhr and son Billy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Landini, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Landini, Mr. James Gillus and Miss Beatrice Landini.

Last Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. F. Darragh and family, of 145 Santa Barbara avenue, entertained a group of their friends from Canada. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. F. Hadden, Mr. and Mrs. Glendening, Mr. and Mrs. F. Haldsworth, Mrs. T. Hadden, Miss Sorensen and Mr. Tom Brown.

There will be a double feature bill at the State Theatre next Sunday, October 23, Jacqueline Logan and George O'Brien in "Thank You," and Tom Mix in "The Great K. & K. Train Robbery."

Reynol and Elmo Viotti, of 51 Irvington street, went on a motor truck ride with a party of friends no Sunday and picnicked at Salada Beach.

GIRLS WILL SELL TAGS IN BENEFIT FOR VETERANS

Armistice day, November 11, will be observed as "Forget Me Not Day" throughout San Mateo county, under the auspices of Edmund Parrott Chapter No. 16, Disabled American Veterans of the Wold War, it has been announced. Forget Me Not tags will be sold on the streets by members of Girl Scout troops and the Camp Fire Girls of peninsula cities, proceeds to be devoted to the relief of disabled American veterans.

Washington folks who drink bootleg liquor have somewhat lost their zest for the stuff lately. It has been discovered that a lot of alcohol that was formerly used to preserve snakes and other reptiles in the Smithsonian Institution has been stolen from the bottles and jars. The bootleggers are believed to be using it in their concoctions.

It is a curious historical fact that the five presidents of the United States who died in office were elected in 1840, 1860, 1880, 1900 and 1920, at twenty year intervals. Wonder if this peculiar circumstance will cause any superstitious aspirants to say: "I do not choose to run in 1940."

Senator George Dessaulles of Ontario was opposed for that office because he was 79 years old at the time he became a senator. He is now 100 and still a senator, with twenty-one years service as such to his credit, which again illustrates that it is difficult to judge a man's fitness by his age alone.

Guy Jones, Homer Serrif and George Moore wanted to make a "flying trip" from Troy, Ohio, to Berea, Kentucky, which they did in an airplane, which it is charged that they "did unlawfully steal, take and carry away." It seems that the day of the airplane bandit is not far in the future.

Omaha lawyers objected to a wise crack on a slate in front of a filling station, which read: "Tell the truth to your lawyer and he will lie for you." The Bar Association sued the oil company for libel, asking $475,000 damages, but finally considered its honor vindicated when the oil man did a Henry Ford; that is, he apologized.

A junk company, which made a contract four years ago with the French government to salvage barbed wire, corrugated iron, cannon, machine guns and other debris left by the war in the Argonne region, has not yet half finished the job. They will have to hurry to get the place cleaned up in time for the next war.

Following a peculiar hobby, A. E. Huebner of Dorchester, Mass., has in 33 years collected more than 300 bricks, each from some historic building razed to make room for a modern structure.

Lon Chaney's best picture, "The Unknown," will be presented at the State Theatre for two days, Monday and Tuesday, October 24 and 25. This picture was shown to crowded house down town at fancy prices, but you will be able to see it at the usual State Theatre prices.

PETTERS CHARGED WITH AUTO THEFTS

Joy riders, "petters," "cuddlers," and their like were responsible for 80 per cent of the automobiles stolen in California last year, according to the Division of Motor Vehicles.

Love-lorn swains, light of pocketbook, but long on nerve, appropriated 18,115 automobiles during the period, it was estimated, in order that the flaming youth might have its fling.

In about 95 per cent of the cases, the harassed owner, who had carelessly left his keys in the transmission, recovered his car next day, several miles from where he had left it. Frequently it was minus a spare tire and other detachable accessories.

Records furnished the division by the theft bureau of the Pacific Coast Underwriters' Conference show 22,644 cars were reported stolen during the year ending June 30, last. During the previous year, 26,402 cars were stolen. Between 90 and 95 per cent of the cars stolen were recovered.

MENLO PARK TO VOTE AGAIN ON INCORPORATION

Menlo Park will decide on Tuesday, November 15, whether or not it desires to have self-government. The board of supervisors on Monday, after several hearings, finally selected that date as the time to vote on incorporation of the rapidly growing town. The resolution calling for the election presented by Attorney Joseph B. Gordon was adopted after all unsubdivided parcels containing more than ten acres were excluded from the boundary lines of the proposed municipality.

Calling of the election climaxes a fight of more than six months by the residents of the Menlo Park district for incorporation. This will be the second time within the past several years that Menlo Park has voted on incorporation, the first time the proposition being defeated.

CRIPPLED JUDGE PASSES

Judge Ray Griffin, Redwood City's beloved crippled justice of the peace, died at his home at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, after collapsing from a heart attack in his court room. Judge Griffin became seriously ill several weeks ago and had gone to Santa Cruz mountains to recuperate. Thursday he returned to Redwood City to transact some personal business, but once there could not resist the temptation to hold a session of court, the exertion proving too much for him. Judge Griffin came to Redwood City from San Francisco, his birthplace, in 1906. He had been four times elected justice of the peace.

To Be Well There Must Be Proper Kidney Function.

THE kidneys are the blood filters. If their action becomes sluggish they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes. Such impurities make one dull, tired and achy with often nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Blonde or Brunette

A Missouri preacher who has married more than 4,000 couples during his pulpit career mentions the circumstances that the brunette brides take their union rather more seriously than the other types. The red-headed girl comes up to the altar with the best of a sportsman. She wants to show you what she has captured without describing the size of those that got away. But the pastor says that among the blonds there are very many dumb-bells. They do not seem to know what it is all about and few of them seem to care. But it must be understood that this is a Missouri record and may not apply so rigidly to the brides in other states. Out here the rumor that blonds are dumb has never gained much headway.—Los Angeles Times.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

Despite a growth probably unparalleled in any other equal sized territory, the trend toward prosperity in California has been steady and substantial. A survey made by the California Development Association showed that this state's net industrial income, including agriculture, lumbering, fishery products and value added by manufacturing, has increased from $513,657,000 in 1909 to $2,147,501,000 in 1925.

California cities, both large and small are fighting for street and highway safety in a general campaign for the adoption of the uniform traffic ordinance, which the women of California, under the auspices of the California Development Association, are advocating to all communities in the state. San Francisco, Burlingame, Palo Alto, Sacramento and San Leandro are cities which most recently fell into line in the campaign.

California motorists to the number of 35,262 fell afoul of the state motor vehicle laws during the first six months of 1927. This is shown in a report issued by the State Motor Vehicle Department. Driving while intoxicated, speeding and driving recklessly accounted for 85 per cent of the total. The records show 27,123 paid fines or served jail sentences for driving under the influence of liquor and speeding.

All California state motor traffic officers hereafter are to drive motorcycles instead of automobiles while in the performance of their duty. This is ordered by Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Motor Vehicle Department, who says that when he assumed office nearly half of the state's force was using automobiles instead of motorcycles.

One of the largest airplane transportation and manufacturing concerns to enter the California field is the Maddux Air Line, Inc., a Delaware corporation, which last week filed articles of incorporation with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan. The Maddux corporation, capitalized at $5,000,000 will have its headquarters in Los Angeles, and the state agent is J. L. Maddux. The company is interested generally in the airplane industry.

The Federal Land Bank of Berkeley last week reported receipts of 244 applications for a total of $1,504,400 in loans during September. The bank made 95 loans totaling $389,500 during the month. A total of 164 appraisals were made, comprising 20,344 acres in California, 3,915 in Utah, and 11,153 in Arizona. The loans were divided by states as follows: California, $196,200; Utah, $92,500; Nevada, $72,000, and Arizona, $28,800.

An announcement was made last week that San Francisco's fifth annual horse show would be staged November 10, 11 and 12, at the St. Francis Riding Club. San Francisco's horse show is one of the banner events on the season's social calendar with many of the horse owners exhibiting their own horses in the ring. There will be many trophies and sweepstakes in all of the classes.

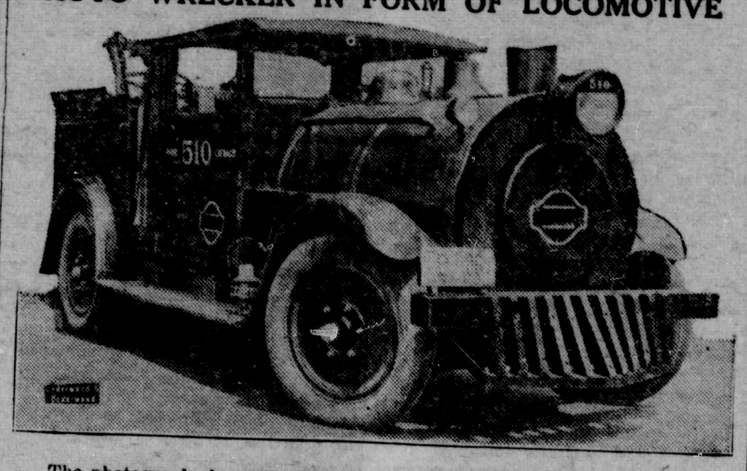
After re-electing all officers, the seventh annual meeting of the Redwood Empire Association concluded its sessions with a banquet at Santa Rosa last week. Outstanding in the recommendations was a demand that the Redwood Empire's marathon, run last summer from San Francisco to Grants Pass, Ore., be made an annual international event. A first prize of $10,000 and at least $5,000 in additional prizes were favored.

Presided over by Mrs. Ernest Wallace of San Francisco as chairman, the state commission to plan for the establishment of a separate state penal institution for women offenders last week met at the state capitol. Plans were discussed to begin work immediately on the task of looking over sites for the proposed institution, considering types of buildings, etc. The commission will make its report to the governor.

Officials of the maintenance of way department of the Southern Pacific Railroad announced last week that decision on whether to build a Carquinez Straits bridge from Martinez to Benicia would not be reached before November. At the present time the Duncanson-Haralson Company of San Francisco is boring under instruction of the Southern Pacific to test the condition of the strait bed for installation of piling and bridge supports. If the report of the company is satisfactory and if an appropriation for building the bridge is obtained officials said the bridge will be erected. The situation at present was characterized as "favorable."

All records for tonnage hauled over the Sierras during the heavy harvest month of September were broken this year by the Southern Pacific, according to figures compiled by J. H. Dyer, general manager. A total of 54,107 cars passed Summit station during the month, exceeding the previous record by 7,875 cars. An average of 1,803 cars was moved over the mountain daily, exceeding by 163 any previous daily average for September. Delay in the harvest of the grape crop was responsible for the heavy movement of eastbound freight.

AUTO WRECKER IN FORM OF LOCOMOTIVE



The photograph shows the latest in odd automobiles. It looks like a locomotive, but really is only an auto wrecker. It has head lights, a bell, and an air whistle. The exhaust goes out through the smoke stack, and the wrecking crane is in the tender at the rear.

RACING TRAINS PUT UNDER BAN

Minnesota Law Requires Drivers to Come to Full Stop at Crossings.

Motorists who try to beat the train to the crossing will face a new risk under the new Minnesota traffic code. Even if they get across the track safely—which many do not—they may face a jail term or fine, for the new law requires drivers to come to a full stop at grade crossings "wherever a clearly visible and positive signal gives warning of the immediate approach of a railway train or car." The same law applies to motormen where a street car line crosses a railroad. Failure to stop is a misdemeanor.

Stop at Crossings.

This new provision is in addition to the old law requiring all drivers to stop at all times at designated "stop" crossings. Another old law which is retained requires drivers of vehicles carrying school children, passengers for hire, explosives or inflammable liquids to stop at all grade crossings.

Here are some other provisions of the new Minnesota code.

On all highways of sufficient width all vehicles must keep to the right of the center of the roadway, and slow moving vehicles must keep near the right curb. This does not apply to one-way streets, where keeping to the right is impractical, or when overtaking other vehicles.

In crossing railroads or highway intersections, the driver must always keep to the right, unless the right half of the road is obstructed or impassable.

Drivers of vehicles going in opposite directions shall each give the other at least half the road.

A driver passing a vehicle shall not go to the left of the center line of the road unless such left side is clearly visible and free of oncoming traffic to permit him to pass the vehicle safely.

Must See Ahead.

A driver shall not overtake and pass a vehicle upon the crest of a hill or on a curve where he cannot see the road 500 feet ahead.

A driver shall not overtake and pass another vehicle on a railroad crossing or highway intersection, except when such intersection is controlled by a traffic officer or automatic signal.

The driver of a vehicle passing another vehicle shall pass at a safe distance to the left, and shall not again drive to the right of the road until safely clear of such vehicle.

Speeding up to prevent another vehicle to pass is prohibited in the new code. It provides that the driver of a vehicle about to be overtaken and passed "shall give way to the right on suitable and audible signal being given by the driver of the overtaking vehicle and shall not increase the speed of his vehicle until completely passed by the overtaking vehicle."

Increasing Number of Automobiles in Japan

With the increasing number of automobiles in Japan, it is almost as unsafe to cross a street in Tokyo or any other large city as it is in New York.

Half of the automobiles in Tokyo either killed or injured some one during the past year, according to police statistics,

There are approximately 13,000 motor cars in the Japanese capital. During 1926 there were 6,368 automobile accidents reported in which some one was killed or injured.

There were 16,282 traffic accidents in which 234 persons lost their lives and 9,871 were hurt. Of the total number of accidents, bicycles were responsible for 5,752, tram cars for 1,445 and the innocent looking rickshaw for 105.

Refrigerator Trucks Gain

When the refrigerator car came to the railroads, long-distance shipping of meats and other perishable products was made possible, and all-year-around vegetables became common on the dinner tables of the nation. And now, with a network of busy highways filling in the gaps between the railroads, and with farmers being pushed farther from their markets by the pressure of suburban expansion, the motor truck refrigerator promises to become a major development.

Keep Umbrella Off Heater in Your Car

If you want to avoid a blaze in your automobile, refrain from placing an umbrella over the heater on the floor of your car, warns the National Safety council. Many umbrellas have handles, tips or rings made of celluloid which may ignite as a result of carelessly putting them too close to heat. People shouldn't place umbrellas close to stoves in their homes or offices either, continues the bulletin issued by the accident prevention association, which has received reports of explosions following such habits.

Useful Hammer for Use on Polished Surfaces

It is impossible to hammer on a polished wooden or metal surface without making dents. An ordinary hammer will never do the work unless the head has been padded in a suitable manner. The kind shown in the drawing will be found satisfactory. Purchase a rubber crutch tip and force this over the head. Now you can do the work without any danger of marring the finish.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Rubber Tip on Hammer Head.

Motor Busses Useful to Transport Race Horses

Those who "follow the races" can appreciate the great care required in handling the nervous, high-spirited race horses, easily thrown off their mettle by the slightest discomfort.

The problem of transporting such thoroughbreds has been solved in England, where the pullman motor horse box car is rapidly being adopted as the ideal vehicle for moving blooded stock.

Horses can be loaded into the pullman at their own stables, taken direct to the race course and unloaded there, avoiding the noise, bustle and excitement of railway stations, and the delays and shunting so common to steam travel. In addition, the horses are transported from race to race among familiar surroundings and with all the comforts of their home stables. Their grooms ride in an adjacent compartment, and can keep a careful watch over them at all times.

The specially constructed body accommodates two horses with grooms and equipment.

AUTOMOBILE NOTES

The campaign against the fellow who lets his car stand in the street all night, and saves battery by refusing to turn on a parking light, didn't start any too soon.

An automobile that burns wood instead of gas has been tried out in France. But it ought to be just about as easy to crank one on a cold morning as it would be to have to start a fire in it.

* * *

The car that always appears new is groomed as carefully as a race horse each time it is put into the garage and taken out. Leaving ice, snow, mud or water on it destroys the luster of the finish.

Guarding Current in Tube Filament

Underheating as Dangerous as Overheating, Radio Engineer Says

By S. RUTTENBERG,
Chief Engineer, Radiall Company.

The vacuum tube is, in reality, an electric kettle. Heat the filament to the proper degree and it virtually boils, giving off plenty of electric steam or electronic emission. Then and only then is the tube in proper operating condition. But overstep the mark by applying too much heat and you burn the kettle itself. In other words, the filament is permanently impaired and the tube is now worn out.

The proper filament temperature of any vacuum tube is a most critical value. It must be held within narrow limits. Too little heat is as fatal as too much, although the effect is different. Subnormal temperature results in changing the mechanical structure of the filament from a tough wire to a brittle string of crystals. The usual tube filament should be operated at about 200 degrees centigrade, which is achieved by applying the filament voltage called for by the tube manufacturer.

Two Voltages.

There are two voltages given for filament operation, namely, the filament terminal voltage of the tube itself, and the filament battery voltage. Thus in the case of the well known 199 type, the filament terminal voltage is 3.0, while the filament battery voltage is 4.5. It will be noted that a voltage drop of 1.5 is therefore required to reduce the full voltage down to the filament terminal voltage. This voltage drop is supplied either by a manually operated rheostat, or by the automatic rheostat called amperite, which automatically increases or decreases the voltage drop as the battery voltage increases or decreases.

Just why a variable resistance is required is easy to understand. The voltage of all storage batteries decreases over the period of discharge. Usually the voltage starts off at 6.3, just after the battery has been taken off the recharger. This voltage, if applied, would overload the usual 5-volt tube filament by some 25 per cent which would greatly reduce its useful life. After four hours, however, the battery has gone down to about 6 volts, which is the normal voltage of the battery, but, nevertheless, represents a 20 per cent overload if applied direct to the tube filament. After several more hours of service the battery goes into the discharge and the voltage drops rapidly.

Reducing the Voltage.

Meanwhile if the proper and safe voltage is to be applied to the vacuum tube filament, the voltage must be reduced by a suitable resistance to compensate for the changing battery voltage. If this is done with a hand-operated rheostat, then a good voltmeter should be employed, so as to provide precise adjustment at all times. Otherwise a self-adjusting rheostat, such as an amperite, may be employed as the simplest solution, since it is entirely automatic and accurate. It provides a variable and automatically adjusted voltage drop, starting at virtually zero, when the current flow is less than 0.1 ampere, and rising gradually to counter the increased current flow until the desired .25 ampere flow is attained with a voltage drop of about 1 volt, which is the normal condition when operating with the usual 6-volt storage batery. The voltage drop increases even beyond 2.4 volts, although the current flow is held at approximately .25 ampere.

Since the operation of the self-adjusting rheostat depends upon the impressed voltage, together with the resistance in the circuit, it is important to use the proper type unit with any given tube or tubes. There is a type available to meet all practical conditions.

Enameled Stranded Wire Is Better for Antenna

Covered or insulated wire may be used for the aerial, the reason being that the insulating coating offers no more opposition to the radio waves impinging on the antenna wire than would the air which would occupy its place. In fact, insulated wire has the added advantage of keeping the surface of the wire bright and clean, and since radio-frequency currents travel on the surface and not through the body of the conductor, this is a decided advantage. Enameled stranded antenna wire, for the foregoing reason, has proved highly efficient in practice.

What to Do to Have an Efficient Receiver

The following suggestions are listed to have the set in efficient working order:

Keep antenna and lead-in tight.

Keep all connections tight and clean.

Keep the batteries adequately charged.

Burn the tube filaments at the specified voltage.

Leave the set alone and call in a

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

City Conjurer Really Had Nothing on Grocer

Representative Gilbert N. Haugen of McNary-Haugen farm bill fame said at a luncheon during the agricultural conference in St. Paul:

"Some of our capitalists and some of our politicians want to treat the farmer like—like—

"Well, I'll tell you a story.

"Little Willie's uncle from the city was telling Willie about the fine tricks that the city conjurors do.

"'Then there's the hat trick, Willie,' he said. 'The conjuror borrows somebody's high hat, and he brings apples out of it, and chickens and goldfish and—'

"'Oh, that ain't nothin', said Willie. 'You ought to see what Mr. Sands down at the general store can do.'

"'Well, what can Mr. Sands do?' the uncle from the city asked rather contemptuously.

"'Why, said little Willie, 'he can give you the 25-cent butter and the 40-cent butter and the 60-cent butter all out of the same tub.'"

A CANADIAN TRIBUTE

Canada will pay a graceful tribute to the American soldiers who joined the Canadian forces prior to the entry of the United States into the World War, and who lost their lives on the battlefields of France and Belgium. It will be in the form of a monument to be erected in the Arlington National Cemetery near Washington.

This monument, which is entitled "The Cross of Sacrifice," has been completed in Canada and will be shipped to Arlington for erection as soon as the foundation now under construction is ready. The dedication ceremonies will probably be held the latter part of this month, attended by representatives of the Canadian government, President Coolidge and other dignitaries.

By this thoughtful recognition of the sacrifice of the brave young Americans who shared with her own sons the first shock of the great war, Canada forges another link in the chain of friendship and mutual esteem which binds the two great countries of this continent.

DRILL SAVED PUPILS

The importance of fire drill in schools was most strikingly illustrated recently when a four room school house at Oak Grove, Alabama, was burned the first day of the season on which the stoves were put into service.

Due to the fact that fire drills had been held twice weekly since the beginning of the term, the 175 pupils were safely gotten out of the building, which a few moments later was a mass of smoldering ashes.

The fire was discovered by one of the teachers, who gave the fire drill signal, whereupon the pupils promptly gathered up their books, filed by the cloak rooms to secure their hats and wraps, and were safely outside before they knew that the building was really on fire.

Without the discipline developed by fire drills, a panic might have resulted, with consequent loss of lives. In such cases the danger from being trampled to death in a mad rush is sometimes even greater than that from the fire itself.

This ever present peril, particularly in frame buildings, emphasizes the responsibility of school boards and the teachers, who should see that proper exits are provided and that pupils are thoroughly drilled in reaching them in a quiet and orderly manner. Hundreds of children have met death in horrible form through lack of these common sense precautions.

REASON FOR FATAL AIR PRIZES

It's just about as far from New York to San Francisco as from New York to London; it's farther from New York to Spokane than it is from Harbor Grace, N. F., to Ireland. Over both inland routes the air does not differ materially in quantity or quality from the ocean air and the same stars are to be seen over both routes. Why, then, should a flight across the water by a land plane advance the cause of aviation farther than a flight by the same kind of plane over land?

Let's pull our beans out of the sand and face the fact that the promoters of nearly all trans-oceanic flights put up the prize money for the sake of the publicity they and their enterprises would receive as a result of the hazardous undertaking. On account of the huge number of fatalities the publicity has had the reverse English, hence new prizes will be exceedingly scarce for some time to come. Therefore a lull in the futile sacrifice of lives and equipment is in prospect, thank God.—September Sunset.

A Congressional committee is trying to simplify taxing methods. When they get that worked out they might try simplifying methods for getting the money to pay the tax.

SUCCESSFUL WRITERS

How do writers become successful? That is a question now in the minds of half a million or more ambitious beginners, as it was in the minds of the present successful ones a few years ago. After a study of many books and the reading of many articles on the subject, one finds the question still unanswered.

About the only advice that can be given, it seems, is that of a noted editor who expresses it thus: "The only way to write is to keep on writing and never become discouraged." It might also be added that it is necessary to have something to say that will interest other people. Fiction is the most difficult branch in which to gain success, but the most remunerative when success is won. Many noted writers followed other callings before beginning to write.

Harold Bell Wright, whose novels are said to bring him greater money rewards than those of any other writer, was a painter and decorator, and later a preacher, before he wrote his first book. Dr. Frank Crane also was formerly a clergyman; Peter B. Kyne was in the lumber business; Edgar Lee Masters was a lawyer, and so on.

Those ambitious to write for a livelihood would do well to hold on to some other job, however, until they have demonstrated that they have something to say and know how to say it. One can tell when that time arrives by the number and size of the checks received from publishers who buy his stuff.

WORKERS AS DIRECTORS

One of the phenomena of American industrial life which is attracting world-wide attention is the extent to which employees of great corporations are participating in the affairs of the companies as stockholders.

Recently a survey of industial conditions in this country by the Labor Office of the League of Nations revealed what is perhaps the most remarkable example of the active participation of employees in management in the world.

It is shown that in the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company 10,000 employees already hold more than $10,000,000 of the $30,000,000 capital stock of the corporation, which gives them two of the eight members of the board of management. The survey report commends this participation of employees in ownership and management in the highest terms and concludes:

"The general experience has been that the communication of information to workers' councils and the sharing with them of some of the anxieties of management have led to a better understanding of problems of industry by the workers."

It is safe to say that advocates of communism will find little sympathy among the employees of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit.

WASTE ON FARMS

In this age of machinery on the farm, it is surprising that so many farmers fail to take proper care of their valuable machines and tools, but leave them exposed to the weather with consequent deterioration and loss.

If a manufacturer were to pay as little attention to the preservation of his machinery as some farmers do, he would be headed for bankruptcy in short order. While many farmers do care for their equipment in a proper way, it is the testimony of many observers that these are rather the exception than the rule. Describing conditions on a middle west farm, a writer recently said:

"I walked through the grove and orchard and found more than thirty pieces of machinery exposed to the weather. The hog house leaked and the corn-crib was full of holes, yet there was an abandoned barn nearby the lumber in which would have made the necessary repairs and covered all the machinery."

It is estimated that the waste through lack of care for farm machinery amounts to $100,000,000 a year in the United States. There are other instances of waste almost as appalling. Is it any wonder that some farmers never appear to be able to get along?

BLOW 'EM UP

An Oregon lumber company wanted to use an improved country road for hauling its heavy logs on trucks with solid tires. It asked for permission to use the road, agreeing in turn to keep the road in repair and make good the damage caused by the log traffic. By-and-by the lumber concern discovered that the cost of repairing the damage inflicted on the road by its trucks was too great. It cancelled the contract and built a plank road of its own because it was cheaper than keeping the paved road in repair. A five-ton overloaded truck on solid tires does more damage to a road than a thousand light vehicles rolling along on pneumatic tires. If heavy trucking is to continue on highways not specially built for such traffic, they will have to be equipped with pneumatic tires. Otherwise the bulk of your gasoline-tax contribution will be needed to repair disintegrating roads.—November Sunset.

Alva Starr of the Navy has a great record for efficiency. He has made 105 parachute jumps and never once failed to reach the ground.

STUDENT AWARDS

While heroes of the gridiron, the diamond, field and track have in the past almost monopolized college honors, through the award of "letters" for distinction in athletics, it occurred to someone at Birmingham-Southern College at Birmingham, Alabama, that possibly some other outstanding activities may be worthy of recognition.

Therefore, a unique plan of awards, carrying the right to wear insignia of gold and silver, has been adopted for bestowal upon leaders in literary societies, dramatics, student government and the like.

The innovation has much to commend it. The time may come when such a minor accomplishment as exceptional scholarship may entitle a student to some badge of distinction, in addition to the satisfaction that comes from the knowledge that he has made the most of his opportunities in the search for education.

MERGER TO AID FARMS

Increased use of electricity on farms in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and other eastern states is confidently predicted as a result of a merger recently formed among power and light companies operating in that cection.

Three new high power transmission lines having a total length of 208 miles will be built to connect the existing systems, the combined output of which will be more than 2,500,000 kilowatts. With the economies in operation which will be made possible by this interconnection it is believed that electricity at a satisfactory cost can be made available to farmers throughout a wide territory.

No movement for the expansion of the electrical industry is receiving more attention at present than that of bringing light and power within reach of the farmers of the country. At the rate of progress being made it will not be many years until electricity will do a large part of the farmer's work and relieve the drudgery of farm wonen. That day can not come too soon.

CREDIT TO WORKER

It is doubtful if any of the various reasons advanced for the constant increase in this country's wealth are more pertinent than the results of a study recently made by the Census Bureau on the average industrial output per worker. The study showed that in 1925 each worker was responsible for an output of $7,479 worth of goods, the total output having been $62,706,000,000. Both figures were new high records, and though no similar study was made for 1926 it is thought the results were little different, despite lower commodity prices.

Industrial output per worker has grown steadily in recent years, and shows an enormous gain over prewar production, even allowing for decline in value of the dollar. In 1909 average output per worker was only $3,125 worth of goods, which left a far smaller surplus after deducting cost of production.

IRISH EDITOR FLAYS RUTH

Joseph Devlin's newspaper, the Irish News, is very severe with Ruth Elder and women flyers in general. The paper said:

"A woman has no business to attempt such a flight. It was perfectly ridiculous to read of this young person's chatter, of her preparations for the event—her vanity bag, Chinese ring, knickers, black and red four-in hand tie and pastel-shaped band over dark brown hair and to remember that she was going to risk her life just to gratify her stupid vanity.

"She is a married woman. Her husband wisely remained at home. If Ruth has any sense left she will join him now and keep house for him.

"Another American lady is waiting to start on the same journey. She should be taken home by her relatives. If they used a slight rod to tame her ardent spirits no one would censure them too severely.

"Men in the summer may strive to equal Lindbergh. Women should stay at home."

PREVENTION BEATS INSURANCE

It is often said, and yet seems to be worth continually repeating, fire destroys and causes losses far beyond the actual damage in dollars to property.

The loss of time to going concerns through fires, losses to employees through delay in rehabilitating; the discouragement that often is indicated after a serious fire; all these things are not figured in the estimates but count materially in the advancement or recession of communities suffering from great fires.

From every standpoint it is well to guard against fires; prevention is far ahead of the next best thing—adequate insurance.

BEG FOR WORK

Illustrative of the spirit of service in the Bell system, when the Methodist church fire at North Adams, Mass., recently broke out, no less than twenty-nine local operators called up the central office voluntarily to ask if their services were needed. Thousands of calls in regard to the fire were answered while the conflagration was under way.

The big moonlight picnic to be sponsored by the Colma Athletic Club will be held on Saturday evening, October 22, in Lovchen Gardens. A large crowd is expected to be present.

Keep in mind November 5, as the date of the next whist party to be sponsored by the Colma Community Center, in the Center on Dunk street. A pleasant evening is being planned for all, and also delicious refreshments.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new automobile greasing and cleaning plant which Frank Russi is building on his property on Mission and Castle streets. The building will be leased out on its completion.

Olive Grove No. 116, United Ancient Order of Druids, recently entertained the grand officers of the order. The regular business meeting was held in the presence of a large number of members of Olive Grove and visitors from other towns. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

In addition to the feature picture, "Resurrection," at the State Theatre next Wednesday, the Daly City Lions Club will put on a vaudeville program of real merit. The Lions and their friends are expecting crowded houses on this occasion, and the funds derived from the two shows will be devoted to community service.

The whist party sponsored by El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, which was held in Masonic Hall, Daly City, last Wednesday evening, was given for the benefit of the homeless children taken care of by the order. There were sixteen tables. President Sylvia Fischer was chairman and Mr. Ed. Ford conducted the game.

Many local people attended the baseball game and the opening of the new diamond at Orange avenue, South San Francisco, last Sunday. Major Al Eschelbach, of South San Francisco, opened the ceremonies, and a game between the South San Francisco and San Bruno Exchange Clubs followed. An airplane dropped a beautiful floral wreath on the field, the gift of the San Bruno Exchange Club. The main event was the game between the South City Redmen and the Derby Club, also of South City. The latter team won with a score of 16 to 3. Steve Fischer is the manager of this new team, and George Hailer, of Daly City, was the star player.

CHILD'S FOOT IS BADLY CRUSHED BY AUTO TRUCK

Edward Burke, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Burke, 605 Fifth avenue, San Mateo, suffered a crushed left foot late Saturday afternoon when the child's toes were caught under the rear wheel of a truck driven by Henry Naylon, 404 South D street, San Mateo.

Naylon took the little boy to Mills Memorial hospital, where the fourth toe was amputated and physicians expressed doubt over the possibility of saving the third and middle toes. The truckman said he was unable to account for the accident which occurred as he was starting the vehicle in front of his home. He believed the boy must have run under the wheel, Naylon told officers.

Police said the truck had backed against the curb, breaking the curbing at one point and catching the foot of the child, who was riding near the rear end of the truck.

CITIZENS DETERMINE LEVEL OF A NATION

The strength of a nation is determined by the individual citizens and a high order of citizenship is vital to any nation, said Commissioner General of Immigration, Harry E. Hull, in an address before the United German Societies of New York. The public schools must be kept at the highest point of efficiency. He said in part:

"The acid test of any civilization is the men and women it produces and the manner of their living. The citizenry of any nation is the first and last line of national defense.

"To keep our people at a high level of vigor and character we must rely first of all on our native born citizens and this citizenship must be sustained by our homes and schools. We must maintain everlasting vigil over our educational system, so that none but the highest ideals of conduct are taught to our children. It goes without saying that every home must keep this same unremitting vigil."

In regard to naturalization and immigration, Mr. Hull said. "We now have on the statute books a law expressing the nation's determination to maintain the high quality of its citizenship. This is the restrictive immigration law we have established to insure that future contributiosn to our citizenship shall measure up to the proper standards.

"We have fortunately recognized, at last, the safeguards needed to keep our national stock sturdy and free from decay. The time had come when we could not admit, without grave social and economic danger, the full tide of immigration poured on our shores from the rest of the world.

"For the safety of the newcomer as well as of the native American, we had to limit the number seeking employment and opportunity among us. Without such proper limits, employment and opportunity would have sunk out of sight in the millions thrown here in competition for them.

"It is only in comparatively recent years," the commissioner said further, "that the importance and necessity of advising aliens as to the rights and duties conferred by citizenship have been fully realized. The immigrant needs to be made aware not only of his privileges, but of his obligations —his oath of allegiance to his adopted country.

"He must be educated and encouraged to an intelligent understanding of the leading public questions. He must show himself loyal to our flag. He must come to a realization that the franchise is a right to be exercised only for patriotic purposes, and by no means something to be viewed from a mercenary standpoint."

FACTS ABOUT THE TELEPHONE

The total Bell system payroll for one month (June, 1927) was $35,827,000.

The operating tax of the Bell system for the year ending June 30, 1927, totaled $72,058,000.

The total investment in telephone plant and equipment in the United States on June 30, 1927, was $3,430,000,000.

A network of telephone lines that will open up the isolated mountain district of North Carolina is now being constructed.

More than 300,000 outward and inward long distance telephone calls are handled in the city of Nashville each month.

The telephone wire mileage in the United States on June 30, 1927, totaled 60,940,000 miles. Of this mileage, 7,311,000 was toll and 53,629,000 was exchange circuits.

During the past ten years there has been a gain of 45 per cent in the number of telephones in the state of West Virginia. During the same period the increase in population in the state has been only about 17 per cent.

The State Theatre has an excellent bill for this Saturday, October 22, with Claire Windsor and Norman Kerry in "The Claw," and Clive Brook and Florence Vidor in "Afraid to Love," in addition to the Kiddie Revue.

About 75,000 acres of land were planted to forests in the United States during the past year.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE CO. HAS 422,000 STOCKHOLDERS

American Telephone and Telegraph Company stockholders now number nearly 422,000. Quarterly dividend checks were mailed October 15 to 421,982 stockholders by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, This is the largest number to which the corporation has ever paid a dividend and exceeds by 1,691 the number receiving checks for the preceding quarter.

There were no important changes during the quarter in the distribution of the stock. Only 4 per cent is held by brokers, the balance being owned by investors throughout the country, including 5,000 living in foreign countries.

The average number of shares held per stockholder is only twenty-six. However, more than one-half of the stockholders own ten shares or less, and more than three-fourths own twenty-five shares or less. The number of stockholders owning five shares or less exceeds the total number in any other American corporation. No stockholder owns as much as 1 per cent of the outstanding stock.

The BABY

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. It's delicious! Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's a sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea; or need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Just one warning: It is genuine Fletcher's Castoria that physicians recommend. Other preparations may be just as free from all doubtful drugs, but no child of this writer's is going to test them! Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold.

Increased Demand for Yankee "Hooked Rugs"

The demand for American hooked rugs of the better kind not only keeps up but seems to increase. By American is meant Yankee rugs, not those which are imported from Canada, chiefly Nova Scotia, but those which the patient housewives of New England hooked a century ago or more. Some of these have real beauty in their colorings and patterns, and the years have softened and toned down any crudities of tint that may have been originally worked into them so that they harmonize definitely and unobtrusively in a decorative scheme.

There is something most attractive about a hooked rug, for it symbolizes the patience and the conscientiousness and the effort to bring about beauty that are part of the American heritage of character and used as part of the decorations of a modern home they bring into it an element that is none too plenty in the turmoil of this life of the Twentieth century.—The Antiquarian.

Pilgrims Go to Palestine

In connection with the war memorial unveiling in Jerusalem a large party of pilgrims is journeying on a modern pilgrimage to that city. The war graves and battlefields of Palestine and Egypt are included in the itinerary, and all places of Biblical interest around Jerusalem will be seen. The stop there has been timed to coincide with the unveiling of the memorial by Lord Allenby. The party will visit the pyramids and Cairo, and later will stop at Rhodes, Crete, Cyprus Malta, Naples and other places of interest.

"Do you think she's with him?"

Before he could answer, the telephone bell rang sharply, and the quickness with which he turned and snatched the receiver off the hook betrayed the tension of excitement under which he was laboring.

"Been looking for me!" he exclaimed. "A man named Mallory! Well, why didn't you try these apartments sooner? Where is he now?"

* * * * * * * *

"All right. Don't waste any more time."

"That you, Mallory?"

* * * * * * * *

"What's that you say? You've got the girl. Came back to her room, did she?"

* * * * * * * *

"What's she like? Violent at all?"

* * * * * * * *

He turned round then, and began speaking rapidly to Doctor McAlister.

"The girl went to her room and Mallory has got her. He says she's perfectly quiet, not violent at all, that is, but she's taking on a great deal, protesting that her arrest must be a mistake. So it's clear she hasn't gone off into one of those subjective states of hers. But what are we to do with her? Do you suppose she'd be of service to us in getting track of Wilkins? She'd probably take pretty good care not to get him into trouble, I suppose, if she suspected that we really wanted him."

"Tell him to bring her here," said my chief, his eyes shining with excitement. "We shall be able to use her, never fear. Yes, have Mallory bring her to this room."

Ashton hesitated for an instant. Then transmitted the message, word for word, to Mallory, and hung up the receiver.

"I don't quite see it," he went on thoughtfully. "Unless Wilkins took her into his confidence, she won't know anything about him. It he did, she'll be on her guard not to betray him, and a stupid, stubborn person like that sometimes makes a lot of trouble."

The doctor's only reply was a comment, which sounded a little irrelevant.

"I told you, didn't I," said he, "that in her subjective states her whole system of sensory nerves seems to be abnormally stimulated, almost to a hysterical degree?"

I had it on my tongue to ask him what he meant, when the sound of footsteps approaching along the corridor, cut the question short. The next moment there was a tap on the door, the detective, Mallory, ushered Jane Perkins back into our sitting room

"Here she is," he said briefly "Do you want me?"

"Yes," said the doctor; "sit down. You sit down, too, Perkins; here in the easy chair where you were before. No, my poor child, there's nothing to be frightened about. Don't cry. We're not going to hurt you."

The perfect poise and balance of his own nerves gave him a tremendous power of calming the nerves and quieting the fears of others. That single sentence, spoken in his calm resonant voice did more to reassure the girl than I could have done in an hour.

"Now you're not afraid any more, Jane," he went on. "This little mirror, swinging so, makes you calm again, even makes you sleepy. You're going to sleep already. Your eyelids are heavy. Your hands are heavy, too, and quite relaxed, just as they are when you go to sleep. You're asleep now; fast asleep."

Once more, and only once, the doctor hummed the strange, droning tune of the death chant, and I saw, by the little shiver that went over the girl's body, that the transformation of her personality had already taken place.

"Watch," said I to Ashton, "watch the girl's face."

"You've been showing me wonders tonight," he said in a voice that was dulled with amazed bewilderment, "but this is a wonder that out-tops them all."

All that was true, for there, under his eyes, he saw, reappearing in the body of this English chambermaid, the strange wild creature he had gone with us to St. Martin's hospital to see, a couple of nights before.

The doctor's voice broke the silence. He spoke to the girl, a single, short sentence in what I now recognized to be the Maori tongue. Then, without a pause, he went on:

"I am speaking in English now, Fanenna, and you understand me. Tell me that it is so."

Her answer was a sort of clinking guttural, impossible one would think for a Western throat to produce.

"Say it in English," the doctor commanded.

"Ee—es," she said.

The doctor turned to the detective. "Mallory," he said, "you know where Wilkins' room in the hotel is, don't you?"

"Yes, sir, but it's locked. He's gone off with the key."

"Don't waste time trying to find another key," said the doctor. "Break the door down and leave it so that a hat and a cloak and a pair of overshoes. Then get your own hat and overcoat and come back here."

Mallory hesitated, and cast an inquiring glance toward Ashton.

"Oh, yes," said Ashton with a laugh. "He's the boss now. You'll take all your orders from him."

The doctor smiled. "I think you'll want your overcoat yourself, and let me recommend a cap, if you have such a thing, rather than a derby. There's no telling how long we'll be out, and the air is cold tonight with all this half-frozen dampness in it."

While the other two men went on their several errands, Doctor McAlister and I found our ulsters and caps. The doctor added to his equipment a heavy walking stick and a huge pair of what he called galoshes.

Ashton was ready as soon as we were, and Mallory didn't keep us waiting more than two or three minutes. He was dressed for the expedition himself, and he had over his arm the green cloak, and in his hand carried a rather preposterous hat, which was just about the sort of piece of millinery one might expect Jane Perkins' taste for adornments of this sort to result in.

The girl got up and huddled herself into the cloak when the doctor handed it to her, in a perfectly natural sort of way, as if it was a garment with which she was well acquainted.

"Here She Is," He Said Briefly. "Do You Want Me?"

"All ready," asked the doctor. "Then let's be off. Mallory, you show us the way. We want to go to Wilkins' room first."

"All of us?" questioned Ashton. "The girl, too?"

"Yes," said the doctor. "She's the important member of this expedition."

I caught then, and it made my flesh creep a little, my first inkling of his purpose. But it was perfectly evident from Ashton's face that no such idea had occurred to him.

"Hadn't she better be handcuffed to Mallory?" he asked, as we were leaving the room. "She might give us the slip."

"No," said the doctor; "she'll follow—follow like a dog."

We threaded our way in silence through the corridors to Wilkins' room. It was a small room, and I stayed back in the corridor with Mallory to make room for my chief and Ashton to go in with the girl.

What I saw through the doorway was curious and interesting. Doctor McAlister strode straight across to the wardrobe, flung open the door of it, groped for a moment in its interior, with one hand, then withdrew it, waving triumphantly, an old shoe.

And now Ashton's eyes lighted up with the surmise which had come to me a few moments earlier.

"Good God, McAlister!" he exclaimed. "What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to find Josiah Haines, alias Wilkins, if he hasn't got too long a start on us."

As he finished speaking, he ostentatiously sniffed at the shoe himself, and held it out to the girl.

"Osa Enns," she said.

"Exactly," said the doctor; "Josiah Haines."

"You can't possibly mean," exclaimed Ashton, "that you're going to try to track him with her, as if—as if she were a hound! It's impossible. Impossible and horrible, too," he added with a shiver.

"So far as the horror is concerned," said the doctor, "we can't afford to be squeamish, with telephone and telegraph wires down all over the city, and likely enough trolley wires, too. He has too great an advantage of us to warrant our rejecting any means of finding him that come to hand, even though they are primitive. As for its being impossible, that's exactly the thing we're going to test. I don't believe it is. The girl scented us half way across Morgan's study, and that she identified the man she murdered by his odor."

Without waiting for any reply, he turned abruptly to the girl and spoke to her in Maori, asking her a question, if one could judge from the odd inflection of the thick, guttural words. In her eyes already there was a kind of smoldering fire. The doctor cried out something more in Maori, and accompanied the exclamation with a gesture of both hands toward the doorway.

The girl darted out between Mallory and me, like some wild beast unleashed, and set out down the corridor at a slow, swinging trot, her head bent low and swaying sideways. It was uncanny to see her. I felt my flesh creep as I set out to follow her.

Mallory had not understood, and he made a motion to detain her, but this was checked by a pre-emptory order from Ashton.

"Follow along!" cried the doctor. "Keep as close as you can. We mustn't lose sight of her!"

We had lost sight of her already, for she had turned to the right into a cross corridor. When we reached the corner where she had turned, we all halted, as if some medusa hand had suddenly turned us to stone.

The Meredith is a high building. We were on the eighth floor, but the girl was in the act of getting out of a window. Mallory recovered the use of his muscles first, and rushed forward in an attempt to forestall what seemed to him a deliberate attempt at suicide.

"Hold on!" cried the doctor. "She's only going where Wilkins went. If there was a way down there for him, she'll be able to follow him safely."

"And wherever they can go," said Ashton, "I guess we can follow."

He started down the corridor as he spoke. I should probably have agreed with him, had I not become aware just then that the door beside which I was standing opened into the elevator shaft, and the gauge showed that the elevator was descending. I signaled it to stop, on the chance that it might prove useful.

By that time Ashton had already joined Mallory at the window. Apparently one glance was all they needed, for they came hurrying back with white faces.

"She has worked herself along a six-inch ledge," said the lawyer, "to an iron standpipe. It's not conceivable that Wilkins went that way."

"Don't forget that he was Bully Franklin's first mate," said the doctor. "But this is a better way for us. Come along."

We all four piled into the elevator and told the boy to drop us, as quickly as he could, right through to the basement. The excitement in our faces was imperative. He threw the lever over and let us down at a tremendous rate.

"This way," cried Mallory, rushing off in the dark.

We lost sight of him, but heard sounds of a struggle he was having with a badly warped door which evidently had not been opened in a long time. He conquered it just as we came up with him, and the next moment, peering out in the misty gray light to see whether we had taken the right direction after all, we made out a dark blurred figure, which was, nevertheless, unmistakable. Still in that crouching attitude, with bowed head swaying from side to side, the girl was working round in widening circles, trying to catch the scent.

Presently she caught what she had been searching for, straightened up a little out of her crouching attitude, and set out, briskly, at a gait which was neither precisely a walk nor a run, but which, if she should keep it up, would tax our powers to follow.

She threaded her way down a three-foot paved passage, which led out of the court and into a larger one, crossed this and vaulted over a low brick wall into the alley which bisected the block behind The Meredith. She trotted the length of this, with us straggling along behind her as best we could, crossed the boulevard, without a glance to right or left, and went straight on down the alley and through the next block.

"You see," commented the doctor, "he took elaborate precautions against being recognized in the immediate neighborhood of The Meredith. Almost every guest at the hotel, as well as the full force of servants, know him. But his chance of encountering any such person diminishes rapidly as he gets away from the vicinity of the hotel He'll leave the alley to take to the streets presently."

Scott's First Novel

"Waverly" was the first of the series of famous novels written by Sir Walter Scott, produced in 1814. The secret of the authorship was well kept for years. The book gives a fine picture of the hopes and fears that animated political parties in Great Britain in 1745, the year of the uprising led by Charles Stuart, the Young Pretender. Its name is taken from Waverly, near Hindhead, in Surrey, England.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

WORLD'S LARGEST AGGREGATION OF BANKING CAPITAL

The world's largest aggregation of banking capital, possessed by a single financial group, either in the United States or any foreign country, will be assembled by the stockholders of the Bank of Italy organizations, according to plans announced last Wednesday.

A total capital investment of approximately $500,000,000 and with a market value in excess of one billion dollars, will be represented by the three institutions—Bank of Italy, National Bankitaly Company and Bancitaly Corporation. The stockholders of Bank of Italy and National Bankitaly Company are identical, the two institutions being owned share for share by the same individuals, and the ownership evidenced by one certificate. Bancitaly Corporation, while an entirely distinct unit, numbers among its stockholders a great many of those who are also stockholders of the Bank of Italy. The three corporations have, in all, some 75,000 stockholders.

In perfecting the capital structure contemplated under the present program, the boards of directors of the Bank of Italy and National Bankitaly Company authorized a $90,000,000 increase in the present capitalization, from $30,000,000, represented by 1,200,000 shares, to $50,000,000, represented by 2,000,000 shares. The capital stock of National Bankitaly Company will be increased from $12,000,000 to $20,000,000. Payment of a 25 per cent stock dividend amounting to 300,000 shares to shareholders of record October 25, has been approved, and of the remaining 500,000 shares, 250,000 will be offered to present stockholders at $180 per share. The balance of 250,000 will be sold to Bancitaly Corporation, at the same figure.

Stockholders of record November 12, will have the right to subscribe to the new issue, on the basis of one share for each six owned. Certificates for the 25 per cent stock dividend will be prepared prior to November 12, and will participate in the rights. Issuance of the new shares sold at $180 will be made about March 15, 1928, but will participate in the dividend from the first of the year.

The present dividend of $5.24 per share will be maintained on the shares issued under the stock dividend. This is equivalent to a 25 per cent increase in the dividend rate, and represents an annual return of $26.20 to stockholders of the original $100 par value stock.

The board of directors of the Bank of Italy, in approving the capital increase, pointed out that it has always been the policy of the institution to make the capital keep pace with the growth in deposits. In the case of National Bankitaly Company, the additional capital will permit them to handle business of a character formerly enjoyed by the Bank of Italy during the years that it was a State bank, but which now, under the provisions of its charter as a National Bank, must be diverted to National Bankitaly Company.

On the basis of the authorized capital additions the Bank of Italy and National Bankitaly Company will each have invested capital in excess of $100,000,000, making a combined total of over $200,000,000.

SIDELIGHTS

Natives in equatorial Africa still try a person suspected of crime by giving him poison. If he dies he is considered guilty; if he survives it is taken as evidence of innocence. If some American bootleg concoctions were used there would probably be few acquittals.

Corporal Richard L. Huffman of the Marines recently performed a neat stunt which few will try to duplicate. While dropping 3,000 feet in a parachute he inflated a rubber raft which he dropped on nearing the water; then dived, recovered his parachute, swam to the raft with it, unlashed the oars and rowed to shore.

Antonio Scotti, famed baritone, is tactful. Asked recently to name the "greatest soprano" with whom he ever sang, he replied: "Most of them are still alive; do you think I am crazy?"

Pullman porters have asked the Federal Trade Commission to prohibit tipping, claiming that they are forced to accept low wages because the company depends on passengers to make contributions to cover the deficiency. The system is also applied to bell-boys, waiters and many other employees, and tends to destroy the self-respect of those who are forced to accept tips in order to eke out a living wage.

According to some phychologists, the proper treatment for murderers and thugs would be to domicile them in cheerful hospitals, with special food and entertainment, together with the constant ministrations of pretty nurses.

Miss Bessie Kempton, woman legislator of Georgia, is quoted as saying: "Women in politics should not take advantage of their sex." The remark is rather ambigious, however, and what she really means probably is that they should not take advantage of the other sex.

Henry Ange of Pleasantville, N. J., thought to do a 32-year-old mare a kindness by shooting her. The mare seems to have had similar ideas about Henry and when he approached on his errand of mercy she kicked him to death.

ABOUT WOMEN

Miss Elsie Eaves, a graduate of the University of Colorado, is the first woman to be admitted to full membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers, although there are several women junior members.

Miss Rose Miller, aged 21, is Chicago's youngest woman lawyer, having graduated this spring from Kent Law College, the only girl in a class of 200.

Mrs. Nesta H. Wells, newly appointed police physician of Manchester, England, is the first woman to hold that position.

Miss Mabel Wilson, of Buffalo, N. Y., recently won the grand American trap shooting championship for women, held at Vandalia, Ohio.

The 1928 annual meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in Boston.

Miss Julia Stinson, Major and Superintendent of the U. S. Army Nurse Corps, recently lectured before an international nursing conference in Geneva, Switzerland.

Miss Emily B. Woodward, publisher of the Vienna News, is the new president of the Georgia Press Association, being the first woman to hold that position in her state.

Mrs. J. J. Curtis, well known New York City society woman, has a successful dress shop in that city and a branch in Washington, managed by the widow of Senator Crumpacker of Oregon.

Twenty-four years old and with 900 members, the Women's Club of Sydney, Australia, is one of the largest in the world.

Miss Emmita Canton, aged 23, is the first woman member of the Nicaragua diplomatic corps, and is assigned to the consulate at San Diego, California.

Miss Dorothy Ashbrook, of Cincinnati, recently started on a 6,000 mile journey to Bombay, India, where she will be married to Edward T. Hobson, an English steel manufacturer.

Miss Margaret Luther has been appointed fire warden at Saratoga Lake, N. Y., where she guards 7,000 acres of valuable forest against fire.

Miss Norlie Loisel, aged 21, has been appointed deputy United States marshal for the eastern district of Louisiana.

FEATS OF OUR BOYS AND GIRLS

Betty Nuthall, an English girl of 16, is one of the world's most promising women tennis players, and may be the world's champion in a few years.

Charlie Capella, of Bristol, Pa., aged 9, has been recommended for a Carnegie hero medal for saving six children from drowning.

Evelyn Poat, aged 13, won the Gulf marathon swim at Biloxi, Miss., by swimming 14 miles in 6 hours and 29 minutes.

Albein Wein, 5-year-old New York boy, has attracted much attention by his remarkable performance on the piano.

Cissie Barnes, girl clerk in her father's London fish market, was chosen as the model for Mrs. Procter's recent painting, "Morning," acclaimed the greatest picture of the year.

One out of every five in California has an account with the Bank of Italy

THE above statement is made in a spirit of humility—and with the keenest realization of the greater responsibilities which now rest upon this institution. Our chief endeavor is constantly to improve the character of our service and facilities so that we shall continue to merit this greatly esteemed privilege of serving over one million depositors in California—one fifth of the entire population of the state.

Scott's First Novel

"Waverly" was the first of the series of famous novels written by Sir Walter Scott, produced in 1814. The secret of the authorship was well kept for years. The book gives a fine picture of the hopes and fears that animated political parties in Great Britain in 1745, the year of the uprising led by Charles Stuart, the Young Pretender. Its name is taken from Waverly, near Hindhead, in Surrey, England.

SENSE AND NONSENSE

By H. H.

VOLUME I FRIDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1927 NUMBER 13

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

A Nebraska preacher who was convicted of having two and a half pints of liquor in his grip, says it was planted there. What a lot of fellows will want to know is—where can you get the seed?

Big Bug: "Where you going, little ?"

Flea: "I'm he dogs."

N," the sfies.

d one, tocking u want ?"

ra," re- e other, of socks

Mose and Sam had just cut a nice juicy watermellon. Being very courteous, Mose held both slices out to his companion, but to his surprise, Sam ignored good manners and chose the largest slice.

"Where is yo' mannahs, nigger," Mose asked indignantly. "Why, if you had offered dem to me, I would have took de smallest piece."

"Well, watcha gripin' about?" returned Sam with a satisfied air. "Dat's what you got, ain't it?"

Gosh, how the money goes! Just seems to slip away, doesn't it? Nothing to show for it. Just gone, that's all. Why not put that money in a home?

Since jails are being equipped with shower baths, they'll soon be calling them fountain pens.

"Man, if Ah didn't have no mo'brain dan what yo' got, Ah'd—"

"Hesh up, boy. If yo' brains was dynamite, and dey doubled ebery second fo' a hundred yeahs and den 'sploded, dey wouldn't blow yo' hat off on a windy day."

It's fun to build a home. Your home! We can help you with your plans.

Teacher: "What is a synonym?"

Pupil: "A synonym is a word you use when you can't think of the other."
